

YOUR FIRST AMENDMENT RIGHTS

taking on one campus at a time

Has your college ever...

told you that you can't say anything offensive, let alone political?

forced you to stand in a speech zone?

threatened discipline for exercising your First Amendment rights?

made you feel like you should keep quiet so you don't risk offending others?

If no, congrats!

You are a student on a college campus that follows the Constitution!

If yes...

we're here to help. Southeastern Legal Foundation believes that your thoughts should be shared, because only through discourse can we learn and grow as a society. That's why we launched our 1A Project to protect students' freedom of speech.

Before you can successfully convey your message, it is important to understand your right to share it. SLF is here to help you navigate the problems you may encounter on your own college campus.

Our lawyers tailor their campus discussions to your needs. We are available to visit you where you are and answer any questions you have about your First Amendment rights in a comfortable environment, so that you have the tools you need to stand up for your rights on your campus.
